Library lines shelves with new arrivals

Kendrick Memorial Library recently received the following new books:

"The Time Keeper" by Mitch Albom (literature) - The inventor of the world's first clock is banished to a cave, then released to teach two earthly beings about the meaning of time.

"The Tiger's Claw" by Dale Brown (military thriller) - As China's economy grows and the Unites States' weakens, retired Air Force lieutenant-general Patrick McLanahan prepares for a high-tech political battle.

"The Giving Quilt" by Jennifer Chiaverini (literature) - The week after Thanksgiving, the quilters of Elm Creek Manor gather for a special quilting session while counting their blessings.

"A Wanted Man" by Lee Child (thriller) - Jack Reacher accidentally lands in a murder investigation while hitch-hiking from Virginia to Chicago.

Elizabeth Simpson of Brownfield skims through one of Kendrick Memorial Library's latest arrivals. Visit the library at 301 W. Tate St.

"The Sanctuary" by Ted Dekker (thriller) - A priest finds a way to escape from prison, to which he has been sentenced to 50 years for a double murder.

"The Round House" by Louise Erdrich (literature) - A woman living in a North Dakota reservation never fully recovers from emotional trauma after she is attacked.

"Dark Storm" by Christine Feehan (paranormal romance) - A vampire awakens to a changed world after he had been buried alive for hundreds of years in a volcano in the Carpathian Mountains.

"The Last Man" by Vince Flynn (thriller) - The director of the CIA is dispatched to Afghanistan to search for her agency's director of clandestine operations in that country, who has been kidnapped and his bodyguards executed.

"The Racketeer" by John Grisham (legal thriller) - A jailed and disgraced former attorney knows secrets the FBI are seeking about the recent murder of a federal judge.

"What the Cat Saw" by Carolyn Hart (mystery) - A grieving woman helps solve a murder mystery through her paranormal ability to read the thoughts of a cat who might have witnessed the offense.

"Goldberg Variations" by Susan Isaacs (literature) - The CEO of a successful cosmetics company summons her grandchildren to determine where to leave her inheritance.

"Sleep No More" by Iris Johansen (thriller) - After Eve Duncan's search for a missing girl finally finds her in a mental hospital, she discovers their lives are strangely entwined.

"The Amateur" by Edward Klein (biography) - Investigative new details about the Obama administration's political inner workings and Barack and Michelle's personal lives.

"Brink of Chaos" by Tim LaHaye and Craig Parshall (Christian fiction) - Joshua Jordan remains exiled in Israel, falsely accused of a crime and seeing visions of the Rapture.

"Live by Night" by Dennis Lehane (historical mystery) - Set in 1926, the son of a Boston police captain falls into a life of organized crime.

Wildcat runners fourth in district

Wellman-Union's runners earned a fourth-place team finish at last weekend's District 6-A cross-country meet.

The Wildcats barely missed third place and its accompanying chance to run in the Region I-A Championships.

The top individual finisher for the Wildcats was Edward Chavez in 12th place, followed by Robert Steiger in 17th, Martin Loewen in 18th, Vincent Tedford in 38th and Steve Olivas in 42nd.

"Overall, I felt we competed well," said Coach Eric Erwin. "Our overall inexperience showed in spots, but that sometimes happens with a very young team."

In the junior high boys division, Luis Escobedo won a medal as the 15th place finisher, while teammate Gavyn Freeman finished in 34th.

Oak Grove Elementary School fourth-graders (left to right) Jade "fashion designer" Romero, Kalgarie "physician's assistant" Oaks, doctors Madison Hord and Noah Jimenez and Elaina "lawyer" Stoker dress up as Monday in their future career professions. Career Day was the first theme Brownfield schools observed for Red Ribbon Week.
