GED test to change after '13

Testing centers in Texas encourage adults to finish and pass before test deadlines

The current version of the GED test will expire at the end of 2013.

The current version, known as the 2002 Series GED test, will be replaced with the new 2014 GED test on January 2 of that year.

Those who have taken the 2002 Series GED test, but not passed all five parts, have until the end of 2013 to pass or they will need to start over again in 2014 with the new GED test in order to receive their high school credential.

"The GED test opens doors to college, better jobs, and the satisfaction of earning a high school credential," said Becky Ottaberry, Chief Examiner of Seminole ISD Testing Center. "So we want to be sure that everyone is aware of this deadline. GED test-takers must act now to finish and pass before the current test expires."

Support is available at the Seminole Independent School District's Adult Learning Center. The teachers offer help to adult learners get prepared to take the parts of the GED test they still need to pass.

Interested GED test-takers can find more information at finishtheGED.com.

A few important tips you should know about testing in Texas before the end of 2013:

- Registration deadlines for GED® test-takers is posted at www.seminoleisd.net by clicking SISD Testing Center under Quick Lnks

- Priority registration is offered to candidates who are preparing at an adult education center. "To anyone who has already started the GED test, your future is calling.

By passing the GED test, you can answer that call," said Randy Trask, president and CEO of GED Testing Service. "You owe it to yourself. Don't miss the chance to turn one small step into your next big opportunity in life."
