Pleas

A 29-year-old Fredericksburg man pleaded to 10 years probation on Tuesday for his role in a string of burglaries in southeast Brownfield last spring.

Cory Jay Gardner was convicted in Terry County District Court of burglary of a habitation, a second-degree felony.

Other terms of the plea bargain require Gardner to attend and successfully complete a Substance Abuse Felony Punishment Facility and pay $323 court costs, a $25 time payment fee, $594 attorney fees and $2,127 restitution. The state agreed to dismiss the other two burglary charges he was facing locally and to allow his sentence to run concurrently with that from another felony conviction in Lynn County.

As the News previously reported, Gardner was arrested in April for breaking into homes in the 900 block of Escondido Circle and 1700 block of Crystal Place in March and taking some property, including prescription medicine.

If he violates the terms of his probation, he will be sentenced up to 10 years in prison.

In other news from Terry County District Court, 46-year-old James Albert Pritchard Jr. pleaded to five years probation for retaliation, a third-degree felony.

Pritchard will also owe $323 court costs, a $25 time payment fee and $1,000 fine and will be required to attend Alcoholics/Narcotics Anonymous meetings. As part of the plea bargain, the state agreed to dismiss two misdemeanor charges he was facing in Terry County Court.

If he violates the terms of his probation, Pritchard will be sentenced up to five years in prison.

Meadow to host Christmas program

The Meadow Community Choirs will present their annual Christmas Programs at 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 9 at Meadow First Baptist Church.

The youth choir and cast of 24 bring Jesus to the forefront of Christmas through fun songs and entertaining drama.

Immediately following the youth production, the adult choir will bring the evening to a close.

THE PLACE OF GOD'S BLESSING

By Daphne Delay

Years ago, the Holy Spirit said something funny to me: "Three hugs a day keeps strife away."

It was in January, around my wedding anniversary. My husband and I always celebrate, of course, but it's also the season of "new resolutions" in life, and in our case, marriage. We had just come off a rough year and I was praying for change.

When the Holy Spirit told me, "Three hugs a day keeps strife away," I immediately could see the meaning behind this statement. I had always been very affectionate, while Tod was not (just differences in personality). But over the years, our busy lives had caused us to be more like ships passing in the night than anything else.

Without it being said, I knew the Holy Spirit was reminding me of the importance of harmony.

When I told my husband, he looked at me a little sarcastically and said, "Really?" But, since it was our anniversary, he appeased me.

And then the miraculous happened! Two weeks later, after obeying the Holy Spirit and stopping periodically just for a hug (not a quick one, but one that would allow us to feel our hearts beat as one), Tod said to me, "You know this really works."

"How wonderful and pleasant it is when the brethren live together in harmony! For harmony is as precious as the anointing oil that was poured over Aaron's head, that ran down his beard and onto the border of his robe. Harmony is as refreshing as the dew from Mount Hermon that falls on the mountains of Zion. And there the Lord has pronounced His blessing, even life everlasting" (Psalm 133).

It doesn't get more plain than that: "AND THERE the Lord has pronounced His blessing…"

Where?

God's blessing is right there over the place and people where harmony and unity exists.

It's not necessary to implement hugs at the next board meeting or presidential debate, but it is important to recognize the blessing God places on unity. If we would remember this promise, not only would we experience less strife, but I believe we would see more of God's favor.

So I hope you will strive for harmony today and everyday. (And I do recommend the 3 hugs for marriages!)
