Pesticide training set in D.C.

Area residents who are in need of a private pesticide applicator's license from the Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) can attend training in Denver City on March 27 with registration beginning at 8 a.m.

The private applicators license allows an individual to apply restricted pesticides to their own property for the production of an agricultural commodity.

This license does not allow one to apply pesticides to the property of other individuals for a fee; that requires a Commercial Applicator License.

Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Agents in Terry, Yoakum, Cochran, Gaines, and Dawson Counties will be working together to host and conduct this area-wide training, which is required by TDA before an individual can take the test for a license.

There is a $60.00 charge for needed study materials and registration fees.

During the same time period (March 27), persons in need of the E.P.A. Pesticide Handler Card (Green Card) can attend one of two trainings, English (10 a.m.) and Spanish (11 a.m.).

The Pesticide Handler Training is geared toward those persons who work field scouts, and any other person who handles pesticides or works with pesticides need this safety training.

There is no fee for the handler (Green Card) training.

The trainings will be held at the Denver City Community Building located at 311 W. 15th Street in Denver City.
